BORNEO ~ AN OVERVIEW

"When I was right in the middle of Borneo, you thought you were in a different world." ~ David Attenborough

Borneo is an amalgam of bio-diversity that blends uncharted forests filled with yet-to-be discovered species, a plethora of endemic trees, orchids and other flora, and animals like you've never seen before anywhere. Since 1996, reportedly 361 new animal and plant species have been identified, supporting the ongoing efforts of international and local scientists to continue their explorations into the seven distinct eco-regions that make up the third largest island in the world (287,000 square miles). Currently, there are 288 terrestrial species, 394 freshwater fish species, 100 amphibian species, 15,000 flowering plant species, 3,000 tree species and 420 resident bird species. To put in another perspective, 40% of the world's palm species, 50% of the world's dipterocarp trees and 20% of the world's snakes are found only in Borneo. And for orchid lovers, this is a magical paradise of over 1,500 species in Sabah alone. Also, the world's largest orchid, the tiger orchid, the world's largest single flower, the Rafflesia arnoldii, and the world's largest composite flowers, the giant voodoo lily – are all found here. The island provides the only natural habitat for the endangered orangutan, and is a refuge for forest species, such as Asian elephant, Sumatran rhinoceros and Borneo clouded leopard.

YOUR NATURALIST ~ GERRY ELLIS

After founding GLOBIO, a children's education nonprofit based in the United States, in 2001 and serving as its director for eight years, Gerry has returned to full-time photography, film-making and natural history guiding; he has an enormous passion for sharing and teaching people young and old about the magic of life on Earth. For over 25 years Gerry has traveled every continent, including such exotic locales as Antarctica, Borneo and the Congo, to document the lives of endangered species, indigenous cultures and threatened ecosystems.

As an award-winning nature-environmental photojournalist, including the prestigious international Visa pour L'image, long-term documentary projects have become a hallmark of Gerry's career. His work has encompassed numerous projects for World Wildlife Fund, Chevron PNG, the Australian government, and the National Audubon Society. Gerry's work has appeared in countless magazine projects for publications including the Paris Match, Ranger Rick, New York Times, GEO and National Geographic, as well as award-winning book projects, including The Outdoor Traveler's Guide to Australia, America's Rainforest and several titles in the highly acclaimed children's series "Nature Watch" by Carol Rhoda Books.

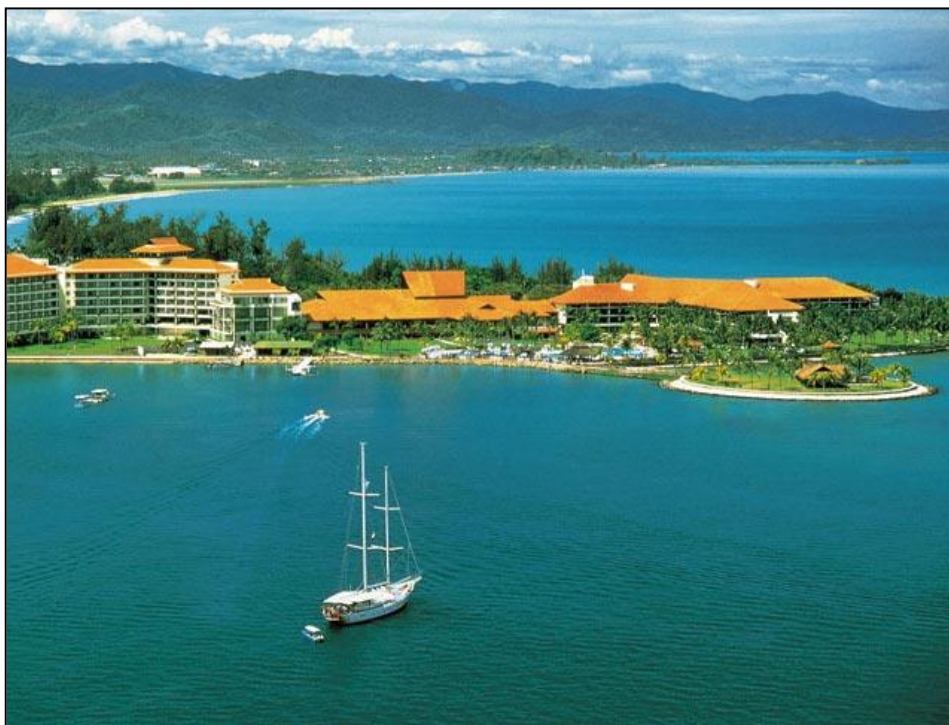

Gerry has traveled to Borneo and surrounding Indo-Malaysia on assignment and guiding since 1995 – including extensive work on the island's endangered "red ape" the orangutan.

YOUR ITINERARY

DAYS 1/2 ~ TUESDAY/WEDNESDAY ~ FEBRUARY 14/15

LOS ANGELES/EN ROUTE

Your journey begins as you board your late night Malaysia Airlines flight to Kota Kinabalu. En route, you'll cross the international dateline and lose one calendar day. (Meals Aloft)

The largest indigenous group in Sabah is the Dunsun/Kadazan, followed by the Bajaus and the Muruts.

After being met by your Classic Escapes representative, check into your magnificent resort and have the rest of the day to relax and acclimate yourself to this lovely city. This evening, enjoy a welcome dinner. Nestled into 25 acres in the lap of Mt. Kinabalu, each of the guestrooms offers en-suite facilities, television, radio, minibar, tea and coffee making facilities and hair-dryers. You may want to relax in the hotel's sauna, steam bath or swimming pool.

Overnight at the SHANGRI-LA TANJUNG ARU RESORT & SPA. (D) <http://www.shangri-la.com/en/property/kotakinabalu/tanjungaruresort>

DAY 4 ~ FRIDAY ~ FEBRUARY 17

KINABALU NATIONAL PARK

You're now off to explore Kinabalu National Park, where Mt. Kinabalu towers above the mysterious tropical jungles of North Borneo in Sabah. One of the biggest attractions of Kinabalu Park is the huge range of exotic plants and birdlife. The park contains 26 different rhododendron types, 400 different types of fern, 1,200 different types of orchid, and 10 different types of pitcher plants, which trap and digest insects in cups on the ends of their leaves. Birdlife includes Mountain Bush Warblers, rare Kinabalu friendly warblers, Pale-faced Bulbuls, Grey Drongos, Long-tailed Malaysian Tree-pies, and mountain blackeyes. Numerous small mammals inhabit Mt. Kinabalu, such as mountain squirrels, lizards, tree shrews and bats. Wildlife, although quite common within the park, keep to the deep forest so any animal spotting should be considered a real plus.

DAY 3 ~ THURSDAY ~ FEBRUARY 16

KUALA LUMPUR/KOTA KINABALU

Your flight arrives in Kuala Lumpur this afternoon, where you connect with your flight to Kota Kinabalu, the capital of Sabah. The original town was destroyed during the Second World War and a new, carefully planned town was built in its place. Sabah, Malaysia's second largest state is mountainous with lush tropical forests. It is known as "Land Below the Wind" because it lies below the typhoon belt. As early as 600 AD, Chinese traders brought porcelain to Sabah to trade for local spices and bird's nests. Though trade settlements were established, mass Chinese migration to Sabah only started in the 1880s after the formation of the British North Borneo Chartered Company. Today, Chinese make up the second largest ethnic group in Sabah.

Ecologically, the journey from Kinabalu's feet along coral sand beaches in Kota Kinabalu to its wind-swept summit at 13,445 feet, forms one of the most graphic environment zone studies in the world. Mt. Kinabalu is the highest peak in Southeast Asia. You will go on a guided nature walk with a Parks naturalist, after checking in at the Park's office, followed by a half hour slide presentation. After lunch, take a stroll through the park botanical reserve where many of the Park's most interesting of the over 400 species of fern and 1,200 orchid species have been collected for study and conservation. Behind the reserve, a moderate trail winds up and across a ridge for 2-1/2 miles with many trees and plants labeled.

DAY 5 ~ SATURDAY ~ FEBRUARY 18

TUNKU ABDUL RAHMAN MARINE PARK

A short ride of 15 minutes by speed boat takes you to the Tunku Abdul Rahman Marine Park, a unique maritime park comprising five idyllic islands - Manukan, Mamutik, Sapi, Sulug and Gaya. The park is home to the bearded pig, scaly pangolin, squirrels and monkeys. Snakes and monitor lizards make up the reptile population. Large birds such as the White-Breasted Sea Eagle, Pied Hornbill and Green Heron are found in large numbers, while smaller varieties such as the sandpiper, Pink-necked Green Pigeon, bulbul, flycatcher, sunbird and swiftlets also flourish within the tranquil park environment.

The best coral reefs are those between Pulau Sapi and Pulau Gaya. The colorful and delicately beautiful corals are living organisms which feed on the plankton floating in the sea, and are home to many different kinds of fish, in all shapes and colors of the rainbow.

Spend your day sunbathing, swimming, snorkeling, diving, or take a short nature trail to go around the island. Return to the resort in the afternoon.

DAY 6 ~ SUNDAY ~ FEBRUARY 19

SANDAKAN/SEPILOK ORANGUTAN REHABILITATION CENTER & FOREST RESERVE

Your short flight takes you to Sandakan district located on the east coast of Sabah. An exciting morning is in store as you proceed to the Sepilok Orangutan Rehabilitation Center. This endangered species is only found in Borneo and northern Sumatra - and is the only representative of the great apes outside central Africa. Orangutans live in forests where they build a new nest out of twigs and small branches daily. Their diet includes fruits, bark, leaves, durians, figs, rambutans and insects. The orangutan can live up to 30 years and the female can have three to four offspring in her lifetime. The youngsters learn to find their own food, build their own nest and move around by the time they are six or seven years old. The Sepilok Orangutan Rehabilitation Center prides itself on returning orphaned and captive orangutans to the wild. Other protected animals brought to Sepilok include Malay sun bears, baby elephants, wild cats and even crocodiles.

Here, the orangutans undergo a three-step process to learn to integrate socially and independently with the wild population of the forest. First, the animals are admitted to the Sepilok clinic for two months. This is designed to eliminate any exposure of communicable diseases for both orangutans and humans. Afterwards, wildlife rangers teach the apes the necessary survival skills like foraging for food. During the daily feeding time, you'll observe the orangutans as they playfully interact with each other and their environment. At the age of seven, the wildlife staff continues to supply the orangutans with fruits and milk, but this food is only a dietary supplement. The primates have already begun to look for their own food, resulting in fewer orangutans returning to Sepilok. Those who do come, swing in using branches and vines, creating an excellent opportunity to observe the orangutan in its natural habitat.

After lunch, you'll have a chance to explore Sandakan town, which was the capital of British North Borneo (now Sabah) until 1947, when it was supplanted by Kota Kinabalu. Places of interest include the Puu Gih Jih Chinese Temple - a majestic temple situated on top of a hill facing Sandakan Bay, St Michael and All Angels Cathedral, erected in late 19th century is one of the oldest stone buildings in Sabah and the restored two-storey wooden villa of Agnes Newton Keith, an American author best known for her three autobiographical accounts of life in North Borneo (now Sabah) before, during, and after the Second World War. Also, visit Sim Sim Water Village or the Sandakan Central Market to browse around and observe the local market scene.

Return to the resort in the late afternoon where the rest of your day is at leisure to enjoy the pool or other facilities around the resort. Overnight at the SHANGRI-LA TANJUNG ARU RESORT & SPA. (B,L)

Stroll through the tranquil streets of the village and observe its residents going about their everyday pursuits. Sail upstream to Sarikei, exploring the cosmopolitan town as you savor their local spicy cuisine, search for handicrafts in the market, or just spend the day enjoying the tropical beauty.
